

---

GOLF INSIDER

“PLAYERS TO FOLLOW 2021”

*BY MATTHEW WALTON
PRODUCED BY MARKET PROSPECTORS*

---

Dear Golf Betting Enthusiast,

This is now the third year I've asked my industry contact (aka "the Golf Insider") to produce a list of golfers to follow for the coming year.

Now as you can imagine...

In his work as a full-time market-maker, trader, and odds compiler, it is his responsibility to have a firm handle on the ability and winning potential of players who are right at the top of game... but, just as importantly, those who are considered to be up-and-coming talents.

Maybe more importantly in fact. Because these "lesser players" are the guys who are often chalked up at big prices, and do the most damage to the layers, should they go and win.

But because this industry insider is also working for us... it's these blots on the formbook, and these potential banana skins for the bookies, that we also get to hear about on the service.

Not just with our week-to-week betting...

But also through this annual list of "Players To Follow".

And so over the past couple of years the list of tip-offs has included a couple of very nice winners at 175/1 (Markus Kinhult & Victor Perez) as well as other first-time winners (Robert MacIntyre & Min Woo Lee).

All told, looking at the figures from the lists in 2019 and 2020... if you had put a level stake on each of the players featured, every time they played, you would have made a tidy profit (something in the region of 60 points in the win market).

And all this despite the major disruptions that took place during last year, when several featured golfers barely played.

However, as it stands, the schedule for 2021 looks to be near normal.

A year when we can expect to see all four Majors take place, plus the Ryder Cup.

And on the back of a year (2020) when the main Golf Insider service delivered winners up to 250/1... add in this list of "Players To Follow"... and you have a formidable arsenal at your disposal with which to attack the bookies.

---

So, as ever, I would recommend you stick with the service as it is proven to deliver profitable results to those who remain patient, and follow the advice – that’s all you need to do!

Or alternatively, if you’re not already a member, to read more about this tried-and-tested winning service you can visit <https://www.golfinsider.co.uk/ja-offer>

Right...

As far as the attached list is concerned, my previous guidelines to the Golf Insider in compiling his list remain the same...

(i) all the golfers had to be maidens on both the European Tour or PGA Tour i.e. they couldn’t be have won before at a professional level on either circuit.

(ii) they couldn’t be more than 25-years-old.

Reason being, I wanted to follow young improving players. Those who were relatively new to the scene, wouldn’t be on the radar of most golf commentators (and so bookies!!) and would therefore go off at genuine value odds on a regular basis.

Because that’s what we all want, right? To back players of genuine underestimated, or plain undiscovered, ability at over-the-odds prices.

More to the point, who wants to be given a list of players to follow... and then find out that they are all overly-exposed players who are either perennial bridesmaids (and would never win however long they played for), or simply don’t have the necessary bottle to get the job done should they ever get the chance.

So like the two years before, after agreeing to take up this challenge, our industry man duly went off to do all the countless hours of homework required to come up with a list of ten players – five off the European Tour, and a further five from the PGA Tour.

But in doing so, he came back to me with these words...

“Matthew, I will happily divulge the names of some of the players who are at the top of my watch-list. But in terms of your members, I’m not going to highlight guys who might only play a handful of tournaments, will go off at 500/1+ when they do, and have no real chance of winning.

Similarly, I agree that nobody wants a list of golfers that includes loads of household names (Johnson, Thomas, McIlroy, Rahm etc) that we all know inside-out.

So the players I'll give you are all genuine winners-in-waiting. Yes, some of these might be better known than others... but they're all young, talented, and on the upgrade, and they should represent value - until they win of course!"

And I think he makes a perfectly reasonable point.

Why get a list of players to follow where you could either pick them all yourself, or they're never going to win in a month of Sundays.

Yes, those who closely follow the action on both tours will have heard of some/all of them, but they all fit the criteria of age, maiden-status, and imminent tournament-winning ability.

This means the attached list of PGA and European Tour golfers seems to me, anyways, to be in the sweet-spot of value, allied to profit-making potential.

Well, we shall see as 2021 progresses!!

And used in tandem with the week-to-week advice the Golf Insider gives out on his main service, it will make this year another big winning year for you. Read on, and enjoy...

Kind Regards,

Matthew Walton

P.S. For full details about the Golf Insider service, and to get a breakdown of the results, or ask any question, please email me at matthew@matthewwalton.co.uk

Or alternatively, to join the service you can visit <https://www.golfinsider.co.uk/ja-offer>

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Jayden Schaper (RSA)

The Insider writes...

“If you’ve not heard of this guy already, then make a note of his name.

Because the next world-beater off the conveyor belt of talent that the Sunshine Tour in South Africa regularly serves up, Jayden Trey Schaper is one of the best prospects in years.

Now up against some formidable names this may sound like a bold claim, but at just 19, Schaper looks to have all the attributes of a star-in-the-making.

He has already become the No.1 amateur in his homeland, and has started to turn this promise into results on the Sunshine Tour, and in tournaments sanctioned along with the European Tour.

Undoubtedly his career path will see him target the big prizes on the PGA Tour, but for now we should see enough of Schaper on the European Tour to confirm the view that he’s a player to watch, and one to follow closely.

You’ll note in his results table a 2nd place in the Alfred Dunhill in late 2020, and this was the pick of several eye-catching finishes during the year.

Now much hype, and much pressure, can be heaped on the shoulders of any young golfer, but with Schaper we appear to have a player capable of living up to this billing. As he says himself... “if you're in this sport and really want to make it as a pro, everyone has to have the goal of becoming the No.1 golfer in the world. That's why I'm here and that's why I'm playing the sport. To get to No.1 in the world is the goal, that's what I want, and that's what I'm working towards daily.”

Now among my odds-compiling buddies, the secret is out in terms of Schaper, so don’t expect astronomical odds about this teenager, but you should see him challenging for tournament wins in 2021... and then you’ll see this South African wonderkid turn his attention to the world stage.

Jayden Schaper is a very smart prospect indeed.”

 JAYDEN TREY SCHAPER <small>WORLD NUMBER 342</small>
Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
South African Open	AFR, EUR	49	2020	T51
Alfred Dunhill Championship	AFR, EUR	48	2020	T2
Joburg Open	AFR, EUR	47	2020	T18
Time Square Casino Challenge	AFR	45	2020	T17
Investec Royal Swazi Open	AFR	44	2020	MC
Sun Wild Coast Sun Challenge	AFR	43	2020	T5
Vodacom Championship Reloaded	AFR	40	2020	T7
Vodacom Championship Unlocked	AFR	39	2020	T29
Titleist Championship	AFR	36	2020	T12
The African Bank Sunshine Tour Championship	AFR	35	2020	T6
Betway Championship	AFR	34	2020	T15
Dimension Data Pro-Am	AFR, CHA	7	2020	T42
RAM Cape Town Open	AFR, CHA	6	2020	MC
Limpopo Championship	AFR, CHA	5	2020	MC
Omega Dubai Desert Classic	EUR	4	2020	MC
South African Open hosted by the City of Johannesburg	AFR, EUR	2	2020	T6

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Matthew Jordan (ENG)

The Insider writes...

“Jordan stays on the list after first appearing in the 2020 edition.

Because there’s no doubting this young Englishman can play, and that he’ll be a European Tour winner in the near future.

A Walker Cup team-member in 2017, Jordan was a winner on the Challenger Tour in 2019, and posted a number of solid efforts during an interrupted campaign in 2020.

His best was a T3rd in the Wales Open at Celtic Manor, along with a T10 in the Cyprus Showdown.

With more starts, and more experience under his belt, it’s a gimme that we’ll see Jordan begin to feature more often at the top of leaderboards at the business end of tournaments. I think this is an absolute certainty.

The Wirral-based player has a solid all-round game, and having played plenty of golf in the UK he’ll certainly fancy his chances when there are links-style courses in use, along with those courses that demand accuracy off the tee.

After posting some notable finishes during the past 12 months, whilst a lot of his rivals have been trading water, I’m confident that Jordan will find an opportunity this year to break his duck on the European Tour.

It would be no surprise to see Jordan land a maiden win in 2021, and he’s one of the players I’ll be keeping a close eye on when I’m pricing up events on the European Tour this coming year.

Make a note of name, as I’m positive that Matthew Jordan is a golfer that we’re going to hear a lot more about in 2021, and on through the coming years”.

 MATTHEW JORDAN WORLD NUMBER 196		Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
		Golf in Dubai Championship presented by DP World	EUR	49	2020	T37
		Alfred Dunhill Championship	AFR, EUR	48	2020	T25
		Joburg Open	AFR, EUR	47	2020	T23
		Aphrodite Hills Cyprus Showdown	EUR	45	2020	T9
		Aphrodite Hills Cyprus Open	EUR	44	2020	T12
		Italian Open	EUR	43	2020	T30
		Scottish Championship presented by AXA	EUR	42	2020	T25
		Portugal Masters	EUR	37	2020	T14
		Estrella Damm N.A. Andalucia Masters	EUR	36	2020	T52
		ISPS HANDA UK Championship	EUR	35	2020	T19
		ISPS HANDA Wales Open	EUR	34	2020	T3
		Celtic Classic	EUR	33	2020	T47
		English Championship	EUR	32	2020	MC
		Hero Open	EUR	31	2020	MC
		Betfred British Masters hosted by Lee Westwood	EUR	30	2020	T17
		Commercial Bank Qatar Masters	EUR	10	2020	T28
		Oman Open	EUR	9	2020	T18
		ISPS Handa Vic Open	ANZ, EUR	6	2020	T20
		Saudi International powered by SoftBank Investment Advisors	EUR	5	2020	MC

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Sean Crocker (USA)

The Insider writes...

“Crocker is one of a number of young Americans we’ve seen in recent years (Uihlein, Suri, Catlin, Kitayama) who have chosen to start out their careers on the European Tour.

There’s a number of reasons for this (many have dual-nationality... and Crocker was born in Zimbabwe) but it’s not to say these guys can’t cut the mustard - as most of them tend to win!

Crocker is another name to add to the list as I believe the 24-year-old will come of age in 2021 and post a maiden win.

He’s a fine driver of the ball, and if he just improves his putting stats, then I’ve no doubts he’ll turn one of his already near-misses into a victory.

During 2020 Crocker posted a best effort in the Alfred Dunhill Championship, where he came 2nd, and there were also another couple of Top 10 finishes along the way.

I would be surprised if we didn’t see Crocker challenging again this year, and even if this isn’t at the highest level, then a moderate European Tour event is well within his range.

He’s a generally consistent performer, who makes a lot of cuts, and sooner or later the cards are going to fall his way during the last round of a tournament.

Crucially for inclusion in this list, we should still get decent value about this American, so he very much deserves a place on the 2021 list as a maiden who has all the potential to post a first win.

Mark down Sean Crocker as one for the coming year.”

 SEAN CROCKER <small>WORLD NUMBER 212</small>
Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
DP World Tour Championship, Dubai	EUR	50	2020	T14
Golf in Dubai Championship presented by DP World	EUR	49	2020	T22
Alfred Dunhill Championship	AFR, EUR	48	2020	T2
Joburg Open	AFR, EUR	47	2020	MC
Aphrodite Hills Cyprus Open	EUR	44	2020	MC
Scottish Championship presented by AXA	EUR	42	2020	T9
BMW PGA Championship	EUR	41	2020	T44
Aberdeen Standard Investments Scottish Open	EUR	40	2020	T36
Dubai Duty Free Irish Open	EUR	39	2020	T39
Estrella Damm N.A. Andalucia Masters	EUR	36	2020	WD
ISPS HANDA Wales Open	EUR	34	2020	T37
Celtic Classic	EUR	33	2020	T22
English Championship	EUR	32	2020	T9
Hero Open	EUR	31	2020	T15
Betfred British Masters hosted by Lee Westwood	EUR	30	2020	T60
Commercial Bank Qatar Masters	EUR	10	2020	T61
Oman Open	EUR	9	2020	71
ISPS Handa Vic Open	ANZ, EUR	6	2020	MC
Saudi International powered by SoftBank Investment Advisors	EUR	5	2020	T38
Omega Dubai Desert Classic	EUR	4	2020	T58
Abu Dhabi HSBC Championship presented by EGA	EUR	3	2020	T42
South African Open hosted by the City of Johannesburg	AFR, EUR	2	2020	MC

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Wilco Nienaber (RSA)

The Insider writes...

“Nienaber is a player who will win in 2021. In fact, once he gets that first success I can see him winning a whole lot more.

In this respect the South African is very similar to Jayden Schaper, but a year older, and more exposed in his professional career, Nienaber is that much closer to being the finished article.

He’s already had chances to win on the European Tour (a should-of-won 2nd in the Joburg Open) and has posted several other high finishes during what turned out to be a year full of promise during 2020.

Nienaber gives it a right belt off the tee, and ranked No.1 for Driving Distance in last year’s stats... in fact in the Joburg Open last year he launched one drive 439 yards!!

However, distance alone will not make him the finished article, and wayward accuracy stats, and modest numbers on the greens, mean that Nienaber still has areas of his game to improve before he becomes a better and more consistent performer on the world stage... as, like Schaper, we should expect to see plenty of this guy in the States over the coming years.

The question will be what sort of value we see about the 20-year-old when he does tee it up this year because, of the five players in this list of European Tour players, Nienaber will be the shortest in the odds most weeks.

For me he’s going to be best followed in home conditions that suit his game, but he has shown an aptitude for playing well both on his native Sunshine Tour, as well as posting Top 10 finishes in the UK and Spain.

Wilco Nienaber is a winner-in-waiting and surely must register a first European Tour win in 2021... the first of many.”

WILCO NIENABER <small>WORLD NUMBER 161</small>
Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
DP World Tour Championship, Dubai	EUR	50	2020	T23
South African Open	AFR, EUR	49	2020	T11
Alfred Dunhill Championship	AFR, EUR	48	2020	12
Joburg Open	AFR, EUR	47	2020	2
Aphrodite Hills Cyprus Showdown	EUR	45	2020	MC
Aphrodite Hills Cyprus Open	EUR	44	2020	T53
Italian Open	EUR	43	2020	MC
Dubai Duty Free Irish Open	EUR	39	2020	T48
Portugal Masters	EUR	37	2020	T14
Estrella Damm N.A. Andalucia Masters	EUR	36	2020	T6
ISPS HANDA UK Championship	EUR	35	2020	T51
ISPS HANDA Wales Open	EUR	34	2020	MC
Celtic Classic	EUR	33	2020	T22
English Championship	EUR	32	2020	4
Commercial Bank Qatar Masters	EUR	10	2020	T28
Oman Open	EUR	9	2020	MC
Dimension Data Pro-Am	AFR, CHA	7	2020	MC
RAM Cape Town Open	AFR, CHA	6	2020	T14
Limpopo Championship	AFR, CHA	5	2020	2
Eye of Africa PGA Championship	AFR	3	2020	DQ
South African Open hosted by the City of Johannesburg	AFR, EUR	2	2020	MC

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Jazz Janewattananond (THA)

The Insider writes...

“This 25-year-old seems to have been around for a long time – that said, he did make his first cut on the Asian Tour at the age of 14!

When you look at his numbers on the main European Tour they might not seem that spectacular, but it’s on the Asian Tour that Janewattananond has been honing his skills.

The Thai player is actually a 7-time winner in the Far East (so he makes it onto this list by way of a technicality, not having won in either Europe or the US).

As a result I think there will be some value to be had about a player who clearly has the game, and the temperament, to win golf events... he’s just yet to do it in front of a larger audience.

“JJ” may well find his first success coming in a co-sanctioned event, where the fields might be weaker, and the conditions more to his liking.

But I firmly believe that he has what it takes to win on the European stage like other players from Thailand such as Thongchai Jaidee, Kiradech Aphibarnrat and Prayad Marksaeng.

His neat and tidy game (the 5’8” Janewattananond is not the powerhouse some other modern golfers are) will give him a chance where the premium is more on accuracy than power, and I think that the more he plays in both Europe and in the States, the better player he will become as a result.

Jazz Janewattananond is worth a place on the list, as this unfashionable player is a proven winner and more than capable of landing a first “big” win in 2021.”

 JAZZ JANEWATTANANOND <small>WORLD NUMBER 88</small>
Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
DP World Tour Championship, Dubai	EUR	50	2020	T57
Golf in Dubai Championship presented by DP World	EUR	49	2020	T37
Masters Tournament	MAJ	46	2020	T51
ZOZO Championship @Sherwood	USA	43	2020	T60
BMW PGA Championship	EUR	41	2020	MC
Aberdeen Standard Investments Scottish Open	EUR	40	2020	MC
Dubai Duty Free Irish Open	EUR	39	2020	T3
U.S. Open	MAJ	38	2020	MC
PGA Championship	MAJ	32	2020	MC
WGC - FedEx St. Jude Invitational	WGC	31	2020	T59
the Memorial Tournament presented by Nationwide	USA	29	2020	MC
RBC Heritage	USA	25	2020	MC
Charles Schwab Challenge	USA	24	2020	MC
Arnold Palmer Invitational presented by Mastercard	USA	10	2020	MC
WGC - Mexico Championship	WGC	8	2020	T53
Saudi International powered by SoftBank Investment Advisors	EUR	5	2020	T56
Omega Dubai Desert Classic	EUR	4	2020	MC
SMBC Singapore Open	ASA,JPN	3	2020	3
Hong Kong Open	ASA	2	2020	4

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Doc Redman (USA)

The Insider writes...

“Redman is one of two PGA Tour players who I’m going to keep on the list for 2021.

Because although Redman remained winless during the past 12 months, his game came on leaps and bounds, to the point where he should be more than able to challenge (and win) in the coming year.

Still just 23, the Clemson University graduate turned pro in 2018.

And Redman has actually been on my radar since 2019 despite, to some observers, not developing into a real tournament-winning golfer.

But he started to come to hand in 2020 with a best effort of T3rd in the Wyndham Championship as well as the Safeway Open.

Add to this a 4th place in Bermuda, and we have a player here who is certainly becoming at ease with competing with the best players on tour.

He’s a neat-and-tidy player off the tee, and hits it long enough (310+ yards) to mix it when a course demands extra yardage. As ever, it boils down to a case of getting the putter working when he has the chance to win.

Redman should again prove to be a steady performer in 2021, and I would be surprised if he didn’t go on to break his duck.

In my book, the man from North Carolina just needs to tighten up his short game (e.g. ranked 107th for Strokes Gained: Putting last year) in order to break through, and we should still get some value in him, certainly in the early part of the season.

Doc Redman looks a breakthrough player for this coming year.”

Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
The RSM Classic	USA	47	2020	MC
Vivint Houston Open	USA	45	2020	T61
Bermuda Championship	USA	44	2020	T4
Shriners Hospitals for Children Open	USA	41	2020	MC
Sanderson Farms Championship	USA	40	2020	T28
Safeway Open	USA	37	2020	T3
THE NORTHERN TRUST	USA	34	2020	MC
Wyndham Championship	USA	33	2020	T3
PGA Championship	MAJ	32	2020	T29
3M Open	USA	30	2020	MC
the Memorial Tournament presented by Nationwide	USA	29	2020	MC
Rocket Mortgage Classic	USA	27	2020	T21
Travelers Championship	USA	26	2020	T11
RBC Heritage	USA	25	2020	T21
Charles Schwab Challenge	USA	24	2020	T58
Arnold Palmer Invitational presented by Mastercard	USA	10	2020	T62
The Honda Classic	USA	9	2020	MC
AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am	USA	6	2020	T50
Waste Management Phoenix Open	USA	5	2020	T34
Farmers Insurance Open	USA	4	2020	T64
The American Express	USA	3	2020	T29
Sony Open in Hawaii	USA	2	2020	MC

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Sam Burns (USA)

The Insider writes...

“Despite a patchy year in 2020, in my opinion, Burns ended it a better golfer than he started.

The 24-year-old from Louisiana ended it with two Top 10’s in his last five starts (Safeway Open and the Houston Open) and became a much more consistent performer.

He only played 20 times during the year and despite missing six cuts, Burns began to piece together a record with a higher number of finishes inside the Top 30.

He’s plenty long enough off the tee for the modern game, ranking inside the Top 20 for Driving Distance in each of the last two years – he’s also got some reasonable putting stats as well. What’s letting Burns down is his accuracy both off the tee, and in finding the greens... if he can dial these up a notch or two then his game will be elevated to a whole new level.

Burns did win on the Korn Ferry Tour back in 2018, so he ticks a box in this respect, and whilst his game hasn’t been tested much at the highest level, if he keeps putting himself in the right positions, then sooner or later an opportunity should fall into his lap.

As with a number of players on the PGA Tour, where the money is good, there is a comfort zone that comes with making a few hundred thousand dollars each year, and some guys never kick-on from being just a journeyman “pay check” golfer... the question is whether Burns falls into this category.

Well, he might do down the line. But for now, with youth on his side, I’d be hopeful that his desire is to claim a first career win, and progress from there.

Given the highly-competitive nature of the PGA, there will be some big odds on offer about him, but on what he’s shown to date, Sam Burns is capable of winning an event in 2021.”

 SAM BURNS WORLD NUMBER 156
Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
Vivint Houston Open	USA	45	2020	T7
Shriners Hospitals for Children Open	USA	41	2020	T34
Sanderson Farms Championship	USA	40	2020	MC
Corales Puntacana Resort & Club Championship	USA	39	2020	T28
Safeway Open	USA	37	2020	T7
THE NORTHERN TRUST	USA	34	2020	MC
Wyndham Championship	USA	33	2020	T13
Barracuda Championship	USA	31	2020	MC
3M Open	USA	30	2020	T32
Workday Charity Open	USA	28	2020	T17
Rocket Mortgage Classic	USA	27	2020	T30
Travelers Championship	USA	26	2020	T24
RBC Heritage	USA	25	2020	MC
Arnold Palmer Invitational presented by Mastercard	USA	10	2020	T36
The Honda Classic	USA	9	2020	T64
The Genesis Invitational	USA	7	2020	T23
Waste Management Phoenix Open	USA	5	2020	MC
Farmers Insurance Open	USA	4	2020	T49
The American Express	USA	3	2020	T6
Sony Open in Hawaii	USA	2	2020	MC

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Will Zalatoris (USA)

The Insider writes...

“Not every player can be considered the “best prospect in world golf” but Zalatoris would certainly be on the list of possible PGA Tour candidates.

But you could say, at the age of 24, compared to some of his rivals (like the previously mentioned Schaper and Nienaber) his time to deliver on this promise is shorter than most.

The graduate of the Korn Ferry Tour can play, that’s for sure, and it would be a surprise if he didn’t develop into a very accomplished operator on the main circuit.

You’ll see by his stats on the KFT that Zalatoris was a regular challenger, and he’s gone on from there to finish Top 10 in the US Open and also post a high finish in the Shriners Open.

Now the betting game, like any other, is prone to hype. And it’s fair to say that the odds about this young Californian will easily run ahead of his achievements, so value will have to be keenly monitored.

But do I see him as a winner in 2021? Yes I do. And can he go on to be a genuine Top 10 or Top 20 player on the world stage... yes, with time as he’s got all the attributes required.

First thing is we need to see him post a first win on the PGA Tour, and this looks highly likely in the coming months. So with a word of caution about prices, I would add Will Zalatoris to the list of expected breakthrough winners this coming year.”

 WILL ZALATORIS <small>WORLD NUMBER 59</small>
Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
Mayakoba Golf Classic presented by UNIFIN	USA	49	2020	T52
Bermuda Championship	USA	44	2020	T16
Shriners Hospitals for Children Open	USA	41	2020	T5
Sanderson Farms Championship	USA	40	2020	MC
Corales Puntacana Resort & Club Championship	USA	39	2020	T8
U.S. Open	MAJ	38	2020	T6
Evans Scholars Invitational	KFT	37	2020	T2
Korn Ferry Tour Championship presented by United Leasing & Finance	KFT	35	2020	T19
Nationwide Children's Hospital Championship	KFT	34	2020	T5
Albertsons Boise Open presented by Kraft Nabisco	KFT	33	2020	T18
WinCo Foods Portland Open presented by KraftHeinz	KFT	32	2020	6
Price Cutter Charity Championship presented by Dr Pepper	KFT	30	2020	T14
TPC San Antonio Championship at the Oaks	KFT	29	2020	T5
TPC Colorado Championship at Heron Lakes	KFT	27	2020	1
Utah Championship presented by Zions Bank	KFT	26	2020	4
The King & Bear Classic at World Golf Village	KFT	25	2020	T3
Korn Ferry Challenge at TPC Sawgrass	KFT	24	2020	T6
LECOM Suncoast Classic	KFT	7	2020	T26
Country Club de Bogota Championship	KFT	6	2020	T9
Panama Championship	KFT	5	2020	T34
The Bahamas Great Abaco Classic at Baha Mar	KFT	4	2020	T23

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Scottie Scheffler (USA)

The Insider writes...

“Looking back to the 2020 edition of this list I wrote... “If Robert MacIntyre is my obvious call on the European Tour, then Scheffler is the equivalent on the PGA circuit.”

And while MacIntyre went on to win last year, Scheffler somehow managed not to break his duck. But I’ve no doubts he will in 2021!

Scheffler showed enough promise, and improvement, during the year to prove to me that he has what it takes to win.

The only lingering doubt, and one which will only grow, is his ability to convert... if he fails to turn another Top 5 or Top 10 into a win.

Four times in 2020 Scheffler was right there at the sharp end of tournaments, and this included a 4th place in the US PGA Championship.

He also went on to finish inside the Top 20 at Augusta, which only backs up the belief that he has to win this year.

Scheffler won twice on the KFT in 2019, so I really don’t believe it has anything to do with his bottle... more the case, as with a number of youngsters these days, they play their attacking game at all times, when sometimes a more measured approach near the close, will get the job done.

That said, I would be very surprised not to see Scottie Scheffler register a maiden win in the US during the year, and if he is more exposed than some (sorry!) his current lack of a win will keep his odds a tad higher than they should be.”

 SCOTTIE SCHEFFLER <small>WORLD NUMBER 32</small>
Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
Masters Tournament	MAJ	46	2020	T19
Vivint Houston Open	USA	45	2020	T32
ZOZO Championship @Sherwood	USA	43	2020	T17
The CJ Cup @ Shadow Creek	USA	42	2020	T52
Shriners Hospitals for Children Open	USA	41	2020	MC
Sanderson Farms Championship	USA	40	2020	T37
TOUR Championship - 72 Hole Scores	USA	36	2020	2
BMW Championship	USA	35	2020	T20
THE NORTHERN TRUST	USA	34	2020	T4
PGA Championship	MAJ	32	2020	T4
WGC - FedEx St. Jude Invitational	WGC	31	2020	T15
the Memorial Tournament presented by Nationwide	USA	29	2020	T22
Workday Charity Open	USA	28	2020	MC
Rocket Mortgage Classic	USA	27	2020	MC
Travelers Championship	USA	26	2020	MC
Charles Schwab Challenge	USA	24	2020	T55
Arnold Palmer Invitational presented by Mastercard	USA	10	2020	T15
WGC - Mexico Championship	WGC	8	2020	T26
The Genesis Invitational	USA	7	2020	T30
Waste Management Phoenix Open	USA	5	2020	MC
Farmers Insurance Open	USA	4	2020	MC
The American Express	USA	3	2020	3

EUROPEAN TOUR:

Justin Suh (USA)

The Insider writes...

“Suh is my wildcard pick in this year’s PGA Tour players to follow, but I genuinely believe he’s a player worth keeping tabs on.

He’s only 23, so time remains on his side... and as he currently plies his trade on the PGA Latin American Tour his exposure is much less than some of his peers.

But Suh can certainly play, and looks a bright prospect.

Just check out his two starts towards the end of 2020 on the PGA Tour where he finished T14th in the Corales Puntacana Championship and then 8th in the Shriners Open – both indicators of Suh’s potential.

Now in both those results lies the truth that Suh might, right now, be best served in low-grade events, and possibly those held outside of the US. Fair enough.

But given that he was previously talked of in the same way as Matthew Wolff, Collin Morikawa and Viktor Hovland (all of whom have gone on to win on the PGA Tour) then there must be something more to him than mere potential.

As result we will be getting some big odds about the man from San Jose, and he might be one to look at in the speciality markets (to begin with) until he gets more experience with the big boys on the main circuit.

It’ll be interesting to see where his focus is for 2021, and I would expect him to start gravitating more towards the main tour.

John Suh is no household name, but those “in the know” know that he’s one to watch. I just hope he gets enough starts to improve his game and to make him a more consistent performer at the higher level. And, let’s not forget, 23 is hardly old in golfing terms, and he could easily develop into a very capable player, given time.”

 JUSTIN SUH WORLD NUMBER 416
Event	Tour	Week	Year	Finish
LOCALiQ Series Championship	CAN,PTSC,SAM	47	2020	T5
Bermuda Championship	USA	44	2020	MC
Shriners Hospitals for Children Open	USA	41	2020	T8
Corales Puntacana Resort & Club Championship	USA	39	2020	T14
The Invitational at Auburn University Club	CAN,PTSC,SAM	36	2020	T33
LOCALiQ Series - The Classic at Callaway Gardens	CAN,PTSC,SAM	35	2020	T9
LOCALiQ Series - The Championship at Echelon Golf Club	CAN,PTSC,SAM	33	2020	T7
LOCALiQ Series - Alpharetta Classic	CAN,PTSC,SAM	32	2020	T9
Barracuda Championship	USA	31	2020	T21
Oman Open	EUR	9	2020	MC
Puerto Rico Open	USA	8	2020	MC
AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am	USA	6	2020	MC
Farmers Insurance Open	USA	4	2020	MC

Golf Insider "Players to Watch 2021" is produced by MarkPro Trading Ltd.

This content is not intended for audiences under the age of 18 years of age. Gambling is high risk. MarkPro Trading and its writers and editors cannot be held accountable for any monetary losses incurred. Never bet with money you cannot afford to lose. For more information and advice visit www.begambleaware.org. We are registered at the Information Commissioner's Office to safely handle your data.

© Copyright 2021 MarkPro Trading Ltd. Registered in England No 12484165. Registered address: 71-75 Shelton Street, Covent Garden, London, United Kingdom WC2H 9JQ. VAT No GB 354 5376 83.

---